Kingdom Economics is more communal than communism and more social than socialism. It has more capital than capitalism, it is newer and more liberating than Neo-Liberalism and more efficient than the Mafia and Freemasons together. It is the greedless and fearless economic system of the domain ruled by Christ as its welcome King. That excludes, by definition, the kingless religions of Christianity and Judaism, which both run on an economic engine and structure made in Babylon, sugar-coated with empty biblical rhetoric.

If we take biblical prophecy seriously, after seismic shakings and the crashing of the old world order (which some call new), God's revolutionary economic system will soon become mandatory. God is calling a prophetic people at this hour to foreshadow and live this fascinating economic reality already in the here and now. Reason enough for you to take a day out and explore those themes:

- God-Tec: God-inspired innovations are ushering in the 4th Industrial Revolution
- Kingdom legality: No one runs the finance ministry without an oath of office on the Kingdom constitution
- How God makes money: The five streams of Kingdom income
- How God spends money: The four budget items of the Kingdom
- The role of the Kingdom National Bank
- Kingdom trading and "raiding Babylon"
- How Kingdom economics is different from Christian economics
- How Kingdom Economics can fix the immense waste in HR
- The five most important house rules of God
- Tikkun Olam: The Re-Invention of the world
- A confidential self-evaluation: Where are you in this?

If Kingdom Economics were the commonly accepted economic system on earth, the gulf between the rich and poor would have ceased to exist. The global wealth would be divided justly, trade wars would be a thing of the past, the pharmaceutical industries would be no longer needed, because people would live far too healthy, and our cars would run with water instead of fossil fuels. It would mean significance, peace and prosperity for all.

Kingdom economics is possibly one of the most exciting aspects of the Kingdom. It is, at this point, the single most undiscovered and misunderstood area of those that say they live by the Bible.

Kingdom Economics describes the economic framework, possibilities and experiences in the domain ruled by Jesus as King. This is house keeping based on faith in God's existence, his decrees, laws and principles. It looks, by necessity, completely lunatic to the natural mind – that what we often call reason. It is the "foolishness of God" expressed in the area of economics.

If you enter a house, you do well if you recognize two things: Who is the man of the house, and Do you take off your shoes? God also has a house – the Kingdom. And it has very clear house rules. Do you really know them?

If you compare Bible-readers with computers, it seems as if you have to upgrade the spiritual operating system of people before you can actually run that amazing program called Kingdom economics. Try running it on a religious operating system and all you get is "tilt" and "error" messages.

There are only two ways to live: Life by faith, or life by sight. Life by sight can be translated as life by calculation. If I sell this, I can buy that. And that deal-making mindset is the very opposite of faith. Mammon loves it!
